

This document is provided as additional content to the New York Times bestselling book by Jack Canfield with Janet Switzer

- 10th Anniversary Edition -

The Success Principles: How to Get From Where You Are to Where You Want to Be

Available from HarperCollins Publishers

This document Copyright © 2005, 2015 Jack Canfield. All rights reserved.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book, like everything else I have created in my life, is the result of a huge team effort. I extend my deepest gratitude and thanks to:

Janet Switzer, without whose Herculean efforts this book would never have been completed. Thank you for your incredible support, deep insights, and long days spent in the original conception of this book, coauthoring a world-class book proposal, boiling my endless production of written words down into a manageable manuscript, contributing exciting and valuable new content to the revised edition, bringing your business perspective to this book for my entrepreneurial readers, and creating such an amazing marketing plan for reaching millions of people with the message of this book over the last decade. You have been a trusted advisor and incredible strategist for my career for nearly 25 years. You are truly awesome!

Patty Aubery, former president of Chicken Soup for the Soul Enterprises and current president of The Canfield Training Group. Thank you for "making" me write this book and for bringing Janet Switzer into our organization almost 25 years ago, as well as introducing me to Bonnie Solow who helped make this book possible. Also, for your persistence in enrolling PEI, our coaching company, convincing them that my message was worth the risk. Your commitment to leveraging the Canfield brand to transform millions of lives, and inspiring me to create the next generation of transformational leaders continuously stretches me. You are living proof that the principles in this book work if you work the principles. Words can never convey how much I appreciate your support in bringing out the best in me.

Jeff Aubery, for living without your wife as she worked on this book and the Train the Trainer Home Study Program at the same time. You are an amazing man and father.

Steve Hanselman, who was the editor and publisher at HarperCollins for the first edition of this book and who urged me to publish this revised edition. Thanks for your boundless energy, your beautiful spirit, and your dedication to educating and uplifting the world through the written word.

Bonnie Solow, my literary agent for this project. You are more than an agent. You were there every step of the way with your editorial insights, emotional support, enthusiastic encouragement, and authentic friendship. I admire your integrity, your professionalism, your commitment to excellence, your sincere desire to make a difference, and your love for life.

Peter Hubbard, Executive Editor at HarperCollins, who championed the tenth anniversary revision of this book. I deeply appreciate your support of this project.

Nancy Inglis, who copyedited the manuscript. Your eagle eye and attention to detail are awesome. Thanks for a wonderful job. Emin Mancheril, who designed the book cover. I love it! Deborah Feingold, who took the cover photo. It was fun working with you in the studio. You are a kick!

Russell Kamalski, Chief Operating Officer at The Canfield Training Group. Thanks for your calm, easygoing demeanor that helps keep it all together in the midst of the tornado-like frenzy we often find ourselves in. You're a true gentleman.

Andrea Haefele-Ventim, who is our old soul, who kept us all grounded and took over so many of the training and product development tasks of the company while I was writing this book and proving how much can be accomplished over the Internet and Skype by doing it all from Brazil after moving there with her new husband. Your ability to stay calm and centered along with your sense of humor is appreciated.

Veronica Romero, my executive assistant, who has kept my life in order with very little support from me during the last month of being buried under the weight of this project. Thanks for scheduling all of the interviews and for overseeing getting all of the necessary permissions for this book. Thanks for keeping my travel, my speaking career, and me alive and well during this time. Your tireless efforts, your attention to detail, and your commitment to excellence are awesome. I appreciate you so much!

Jesse Ianniello, for all of your endless hours of transcribing the hundreds of interviews I recorded for the original manuscript, and for taking on the huge in-house editing job required to complete this book, on top of your regular role as Vice-President of Training. You consistently make the difficult look easy. You are a true wonder.

Donna Bailey, for looking after me in so many areas of my life, especially making sure we stay on budget so that we always have enough money to do the things we need to do.

Teresa Collett, for managing to coordinate all my speaking engagements and keeping all of our clients happy for the last 20 years, especially while I was rewriting this book.

Lisa Williams, my marketing director, who oversees all our Internet presence, for constantly advancing this work and being the caretaker of my message, and especially for your work in soliciting new success stories for this revised edition. Your tireless dedication to the mission is amazing.

Lexi Wagner, for all your support in the marketing department as well as social media. I so appreciate your "whatever you need" and your "whatever it takes" attitude.

Alice Doughty-Refauvelet, for your enthusiasm, your creativity, and your ability to do just about anything we put in front of you.

Jody Schwartz, for your complete and total focus on our flagship training, Breakthrough to Success. Your enthusiasm is contagious!

Dwain Jeworski, for making yourself available to us as our trusted resource around the digital age, as well as all of your marketing brilliance and genuine willingness to do whatever it takes to support me and the company on so many levels, beyond the Success Principles.

Marci Shimoff, who took a week out of her life to help hone the original book and offered such valuable feedback. Thanks for your generosity of spirit.

All my family for their love, support, and understanding during what has been unquestionably the greatest professional challenge of my career. Thanks for understanding the long hours that were required to finish this project on time. I love and appreciate you all so much. Inga, my wife, whom I adore for how much she understands me and what I am about, and for her unceasing love, support, humor, and encouragement. Christopher, my now 23-year-old son, for putting up with my obsession around this book. I hope our trips to Europe and Africa made up for the time lost during the writing of the first edition. Riley and Travis, my two stepchildren, who are courageously pursuing their dreams and who always keep it interesting. Thanks for being so supportive. Oran and Kyle, my two older sons. Now we have more time to focus on family and my first grandchild.

My sister Kim, for all of her moral support and encouragement when I couldn't see the light at the end of the tunnel. It's nice having a sister who is a fellow writer and understands the process.

Janet's family, for their support, understanding, and good humor in the face of missed vacations and endless book-related dinner conversation. To her parents, Les and Beverly, who showed Janet early on the meaning of success and who fostered an atmosphere of achievement in their home. To her siblings, Jennifer and Jeff, for their constant support and encouragement through every new step in Janet's life and career. And most especially, thanks to Janet's niece Brianne, who not only reflects how children learn to be successful but is also a gentle reminder that the most important thing is to enjoy it.

Dawa Tarchin Phillips, for your wonderful friendship and your chapter on Mindfulness.

Ivan Misner, for your unwavering support of this work and your major contribution to the chapter on Networking.

Moses Ma, for your brilliance, which constantly amazes me, and your contribution to the chapters on Success in the Digital Age. You always come through.

Kathleen Seeley, for your tremendous support in creating the chapter on Leadership, as well as for your continued support in developing and improving our training programs.

Robert MacPhee, for your deep dedication to this work and to your contribution to the chapter on Masterminding.

Alex Mandossian for your hosting my Ask Jack calls for so many years and your thoughts on successfully using Google Hangouts.

All the people at the Professional Education Institute in Chicago and Salt Lake City who run the Canfield Coaching program including Mike Hussey, Elizabeth Ranno, Roger Sinnes, Bill Berg, Andy Naud, Mike Noice, Dahlia Fukuda, Dave Heilmann, and Mike Reid. And all the incredible coaches who work with me to make sure people actually implement the success principles and who keep creating miraculous results year after year, especially Wade Lindstrom, John Beaman, Gary Reid, Lee Caldwell, Eric Lloyd and Koran Messina. And the fantastic enrollment team—Monnica Manuel, Cindie Lee, and Jared Shaver.

All the people who let me interview you, and all those who sent me stories of your success using these principles. Thanks for letting me include your experiences.

Steve and Bill Harrison and all the folks at Bradley Communications and the Quantum Leap Program for your ongoing support. You guys are class acts all the way.

The hundreds of graduates of my year-long Train the Trainer program who are now teaching these principles in 40 countries around the world including India, Ireland, Russia, the Ukraine, China, Israel, Egypt, Malaysia, The United Arab Emirates, Kenya, Australia, Mexico, Canada and New Zealand. I deeply appreciate your dedication to inspiring and empowering people all over the world.

And finally, thanks to all of the assistants and participants in my seminars and workshops these past 30 years for sharing your dreams, struggles, and triumphs with me. Your heroic efforts in overcoming your limiting beliefs and fears, your courage in confronting the obstacles in your paths, your perseverance in the face of adversity, and the amazing lives you have all created are the inspiration that led me to write this book and share these principles with others. Thank you for being the models of vision, purpose, and passion that the world so desperately needs. Know that you are all represented in these pages.